

Cox Gaining Steadily On League Issue; "Something May Happen" As Result Of Eleventh Hour Drift

Wilson Expresses His Confidence In Cox

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—President Wilson today wrote Governor Cox expressing his confidence in the Democratic presidential nominee.

The president expressed the hope that under Governor Cox's leadership "we carry the policy of the national government forward along the path of liberal legislation and humane reform, until the whole world again sees an illustration of the wholesome strength of Democracy and the happy fruit of what the founders of the republic purposed when they set this great government up."

The president said he had followed Governor Cox's course throughout the campaign with admiration and expressed the belief that the governor would receive the "entire endorsement" of the voters of the country.

"You have spoken truly and fearlessly about the great issues at stake," the president said, "and in concluding his letter he asked that he be permitted to sign himself 'your gratified and loyal supporter.'"

The letter of President Wilson to Governor Cox follows in full:

"29th of October, 1920.

"My Dear Governor Cox:

"As the campaign approaches its climax, I want to give myself the pleasure of writing to say with what admiration I have followed your course throughout the campaign. You have spoken truly and fearlessly about the great issues at stake, and I believe that you will receive the emphatic endorsement of the voters of the country. As one of these voters, and as one of your fellow citizens, I want to express my entire confidence in you and my confident hope that under your leadership we may carry the policy of the national government forward along the path of liberal legislation and humane reform, until the whole world again sees an illustration of the wholesome strength of Democracy and the happy fruit of what the founders of the republic purposed when they set this great government up."

"Allow me to sign myself

"Your gratified and loyal supporter,

"WOODROW WILSON."

Tremendous Victory For The G. O. P., Says Hays

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee today issued a statement in which he said an official Republican survey of the country indicated that Harding and Coolidge would receive "the largest popular majority ever cast in a presidential election."

"We are now approaching the conclusion of this campaign," said Mr. Hays. "On the part of the Republican party it has been predicated upon the necessity of the revival of patriotism in this country. It has had for a main purpose the re-establishment of an economic and efficient administration of the country's government."

"The Democratic strategy in this campaign has been desperately sought to escape just and due responsibility for Democratic extravagance, autocracy and failure to solve any of the domestic problems. The Democratic management has attempted to hide behind a peace smoke screen which is as counterfeit as the 1916 pledge that Wilson 'would keep us out of war.'"

"But America is uppermost in the American conscience today and that means that the American voter is intent upon making America safe at home as well as abroad, and that the Democratic party cannot avoid responsibility for eight years of maladministration."

"The electorate is determined that the accumulated work in Washington will not longer be denied attention, that all the domestic problems shall be met and solved immediately before which problems the Democratic party has stood impotent and in confessed bankruptcy."

"The Republicans have succeeded in the earnest effort to keep their campaign on the very highest plane. In this course they will continue to the end, unaffected in any way by the depths to which the opposition is descending in the concluding days of the campaign. I have complete 100 per cent faith in complete Republican victory this fall, because I have 100 per cent confidence in American common sense, and because I have 100 per cent evidence that this dependable American intelligence will certainly express itself at the November polls. Thirty-two states are surely Republican, seven additional most probably Republican and only nine at the most safely Democratic."

"The minimum number of safe Republican electoral votes is 368. There is very much better than even chance for 37 more, making the almost certain Republican electoral vote 392 with a very probable additional 257."

"Mr. Hays added that the Republican majority would exceed the 'unprecedented Roosevelt electoral majority of 1901.'"

Her Husband For Cox But She's For Harding

When Mabel Talianferro, the actress, and her hubby, Capt. J. T. O'Brien, U.S.A., registered for the coming election at Stamford, Conn., the other day someone asked the star how the "O'Brien family" stood on politics. Mabel promptly informed the inquirer that the fact her hubby was a strong Democrat wouldn't influence her views. "I'm going to vote for Mr. Harding," she said.

A NEW COMBINATION OF VOTES MAY FURNISH SURPRISE TUESDAY; WOMEN'S VOTE PROVES A PUZZLE

New York, New Jersey, Illinois And Ohio Safe For Harding, Says David Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1920, by The Times Publishing Co.)

(This is the first of a series of three articles forecasting the trend of next Tuesday's electoral vote for President and analyzing the situation in three-fourths of the states of the union visited by the writer during the last two noon days.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The coalition of the west and south which gave Woodrow Wilson his victory in 1916 was a new combination of electoral votes. Previously the big eastern states—New York, New Jersey, Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois together with New England, were sufficient to tell everybody on election night that the race was over.

The big question this year is whether there is any combination of votes whereby Governor Cox can win the presidency. Senator Harding has been picked by most everybody to win chiefly because of the traditional habit of America to change administrations every few years. But the Democrats have managed to force the League of Nations to the front as an issue with remarkable success in the past fifteen days and any calculations made by the writer or anybody else as early as October 1 are necessarily subject to revision at the last moment.

Re-Caucus of West

When this correspondent visited every state west of the Mississippi with one or two exceptions, he reported after an investigation of thirty days that there were only a few states—Utah, Montana, and Nevada—where the Democratic nominee for the presidency had a good chance. In order to determine whether these states are still safe for Cox and whether any others have been added to the list, the writer has sent telegrams to almost every man in the west in whose judgment he has placed reliance and has asked that the replies be sent in a specified code so that men working on Democratic newspapers or in the Democratic organization or those employed in the Republican camp would have no hesitancy in expressing their telegraphic views to their own confidential and unimpaired judgment.

Extraordinary Factors

These telegrams are coming in and the results will be embodied in tomorrow's dispatch. As for the situation east of the Mississippi River which has been examined in person by the writer in the last thirty days, several factors stand out clearly:

FIRST: The heavy registration of women has made it doubtful whether in some states everybody will have a chance to vote in the limited period that the polls are open. On account of the congestion at the polls, especially in states where no provision has been made to handle the crowds, many voters will not be able to get to the polls in time to vote.

SECOND: The negro vote in Northern states is better organized than ever has been. In some of the border states feeling is not altogether pleasant over the way the negroes have been mobilized by the Republicans and it is not altogether a certainty whether in cases where Democrats control the election machinery there will be enough for the negroes to vote against in certain cities where the Republicans have control. Just the reverse is not the case and many whites may not get a chance to vote. The race question unfortunately enters into the calculations of certain states.

Women Have True Guessing

THIRD: The true effect of the enfranchisement of women throughout the nation is the most material quantity in the whole situation. Politicians profess to know how the women will vote but they don't. No politician knows in all the states that the writer has visited how to produce a census of the feminine vote which would be considered complete. Time and again the canvass of the masculine vote has been accomplished with such accuracy in advance of the election that the result has varied but little from the official result. Most editors and political leaders agree, however, that the women will mostly double the Republican or Democratic vote or increase it by at least 50 percent. As the feminine vote so votes the wife. That is the theory. Westerners who have had more experience with women suffrage for many years uphold that view. Yet in Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia and even Ohio it has been admitted by politicians that perhaps the league of nations has made more women voters independent of party lines than at first it appears. At all—less the west which is expected. In West Virginia, Indiana, New York and New Jersey there has been a noticeable revival of interest among men and women in the League of Nations, a wider reading of the movement than was believed possible on a question that has so often been dismissed by the professional politicians as "dead" or with the statement that the "people are sick and tired of the League."

Seventeen for Wilson

FOURTH: Another remarkable thing is that while the street talk and club talk and smoking car gossip and newspaper talk has constituted an apparent wave of anti-Wilsonism, the casual reaction of the name of Woodrow Wilson in meeting held by the Democrats has not been met with silence or a few scattered hand claps but by spontaneous outbursts of approval. The Democrats themselves have been pleasantly surprised by the demonstrations and don't know whether to interpret it as a feeling of sympathy for the man who has broken here and down in health in his endeavors to serve the people as he thought best or

F. D. Roosevelt Sues Paper For Damages

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for Vice President, today filed papers in a suit for $500,000 against John H. Patton, editor and publisher of the Providence Journal, and C. Long and Edward B. Clark, manager and assistant manager of publicity for the Republican national committee. Mr. Roosevelt charges the defendants with circulating false and defamatory libel. An editorial in the Providence Journal charged Mr. Roosevelt's loss of eyesight or destroyed navy department records, and that he had fought personally to return to the ships of the navy men convicted of various crimes.

Lorimer Replies To Governor Cox's Charges

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 29.—Geo. Morris Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, in a statement in reply to charges of "unfair partisanship" on the part of the Post and its editor, made yesterday by Governor Cox, said:

"It is common knowledge that the Saturday Evening Post is not influenced in its stand by a desire for more circulation. Partisanship to Governor Cox means being a thin-skinned in what he stands for. The Saturday Evening Post has always had perfectly clear opinions on politics and other subjects, and has never hesitated to express them."

Industrial Homes And Gardens

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—Industrial homes and gardens are to be one of the major elements of the many factors that make for success in future manufacturing in the opinion of the special committee, which submitted a report today to the Associated Industries of Massachusetts at its annual meeting.

"A hundred years ago, the great bulk of Massachusetts citizens were home and land owners," said the report, "but today less than 5 per cent of the industrial workers of the state own their own homes. History shows no race of people who have owned land they cultivated who became revolutionaries. Russia, France, Mexico all blew up because the people could not get the land."

MACSWINEY'S BODY TAKEN FROM RELATIVES; SENT DIRECT TO CORK BY SHIP; VIOLENT SCENE WHEN VICTIM'S FAMILY DRAGGED FROM TRAIN

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Oct. 29.—(By The Associated Press)—The body of Terence MacSwiney, the late lord mayor of Cork, was landed here today from the steamer Rathmore. It was received by the Irish council and members of the city's inhabitants. A draft of armed troops was present.

ROLYHEAD, WALES, Oct. 29.—(By The Associated Press)—When day broke this morning over the Irish sea, the steamer Rathmore, bearing the body of the late Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, who died Monday in British prison, London, was standing southward off the Welsh headlands on its way to that city.

At the same hour, the relatives of MacSwiney, who refused to board the ship provided to take them with the lord mayor's body to Cork, were on a failure at his late works under many hands. They were likely to drag across the narrow strand which divides Rathmore from the city. The relatives left Rathmore at 2:30 o'clock, a little more than an hour after the Rathmore departed for the coast.

Shipments of MacSwiney's body direct to Cork was preceded by a violent scene, in which blows were struck and members of the lord mayor's family were dragged from their railway coach at the Holyhead railway station. They refused to consent to the government's plan to take the body to Cork instead of Dublin, and it was only after they had been placed under virtual temporary arrest that the body was taken from the train and landed at the dock where the Rathmore was waiting.

The first stop after the train left London station was at Crewe, just outside of London, where the superintendent of the London Metropolitan police in charge of three coaches filled with constables accompanying the party, was backed by a messenger.

It was stated by Sir Hamar Greenwood, secretary for Ireland, and was addressed to the widow of the late lord mayor, it read:

"Madam: I am advised that the landing and funeral of the lord mayor in Dublin may lead to a demonstration of a political nature. I regret, therefore, the Irish government cannot allow the disembarkation of the remains at any other port in Ireland except his native city of Cork. In order to save you every inconvenience, the government has directed the Lon-

Many Stricken With Typhoid At Salem, Ohio

ALLIANCE, O., Oct. 29.—Isolated water has caused an epidemic of typhoid fever in Salem, a town of about 11,000 people, east of Alliance. Scores have been stricken with the scourge, and doctors and nurses have been taxed to the limit during the past week.

Dr. H. K. Yaggi stated today that twenty doctors were spending practically all of their time attending to patients, and a call has been issued for additional nurses. The exact number who have been stricken with typhoid is not definitely known or given out. One physician stated today that there were sixty-seven cases regarded as serious, and others stated that in their opinion as many as three or four hundred are suffering in a mild way with the scourge. Three clerks of the Springfield store of Alliance, who attended an opening of a brick store of that firm at Salem last week, returned home and have been stricken with typhoid as a result of drinking the city water there, Health Officer Dr. H. M. Schwartz stated today that there were eighty-one well defined cases of typhoid fever up to last evening.

Your Child And Opportunity!

You want to do the best you can for your child, of course. If you are making mistakes they are unintentional.

Now stop and think of this: Is his physical condition all it should be? Certainly the most important aid to success is a good physique. The child who is not physically fit begins to fail as a failure at his late works under many hands. They are likely to drag across the narrow strand which divides Rathmore from the city. The relatives left Rathmore at 2:30 o'clock, a little more than an hour after the Rathmore departed for the coast.

Do you know how to make sure there is nothing physically wrong with your child?

White Says G. O. P. Demoralized; Signs Point To Cox's Victory

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—George White, chairman of the Democratic national committee today made a forecast of election results: "The general political situation at the close of the last week of the campaign of 1920 is full of signs which point unmistakably to Democratic success," he said.

"Governor Cox and Mr. Roosevelt will carry the border states of Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri and Oklahoma. In addition to the Southern states. They will carry Ohio and Indiana. On the Atlantic seaboard in New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, due to an eleventh hour shift, the situation is improving every minute and we feel certain that we will carry New Jersey, Connecticut and New Hampshire."

"In the West, reports from Montana, Colorado, Arizona, Idaho, New Mexico, Washington, Nevada, South Dakota and Utah are that they are certainly Democratic and we believe we will carry Nebraska, California and North Dakota. In Minnesota, Oregon and Wisconsin our prospects are hardly improving and a great swing toward us is in Kansas, Illinois and even in Iowa."

"The Republicans are demoralized from the Canadian border to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Their forces are in full retreat everywhere."

The latter died before a council was attached to the will in June, 1913 and her interest was given to one of her heirs.

CANAL HEARING IN CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 29.—(Herald) Arguments in favor of the Cincinnati-Milwaukee canal route were expected to reach the board of the United States Army engineers, who are holding a session at the Cincinnati chamber of commerce today.

It was announced by the engineers that this probably will be their last meeting and they will soon submit their findings to Washington.

Albert Krell, president of the inland waterway association, urged that the canal be built from Cincinnati to Toledo, with a branch at Delaware, Ohio, to Lake Michigan. Alan Jordan of the Portsmouth chamber of commerce presented his plan for the canal through the central part of the state.

The engineers will be taken on a trip on the Ohio to view the Cincinnati terminals and also the mouth of the Mississippi, where the canal may be located. They will ride in automobiles Saturday along the route of the old Miami and Erie canal between Cincinnati and Dayton.

Hallowe'en Party At Manse

A Hallowe'en party, which lived up to the traditions, was enjoyed by a splendid crowd of First Presbyterian young people at the Manse last evening. Elaborate seasonal decorations prevailed, and a multitude of cats, pumpkins and witches vied for honors with the spectral phantoms which greeted strangers on their entrance. After securing fortunes from the witch's broom, in glowing letters, other chances were risked, and many a wish came true in unexpected fashion. The grand prize for the "running broad smile" went to Frederick Fride, Jr. Threading a needle in the dark proved to be one of the most popular of the evening's games, and several of the uninitiated learned how to secure a black eye without feeling any pain. Old fashioned refreshments consisting of hot doughnuts and apples followed the fun.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Declaring he had good information that "all kinds of violations of the law from mere technicalities to buying of votes, stealing of ballots and deliberate spoiling of ballots by election officials" would be resorted to in four congressional districts here next Tuesday, Julius Garber, executive secretary of the New York county organization of the Socialist party, today called upon Attorney General Palmer in a letter "to see that the election be carried on in accordance with the law."

"In the election of 1918," he wrote, "during the canvass of the votes on the night of election day, the lights were turned off and the polling places left in darkness, and while the lights were on, ballots cast for the Socialist candidate were stolen and either substituted by others marked for the fusion candidate or the ballots were missing."

Sure Cure For Blues

Even more enjoyable in every respect than the program for the first half of the week is the combined offering of musical comedy, these first run feature photoplays and genuine big-time vaudeville for today and tomorrow at the Sun theatre, according to all those who attended the popular playhouse yesterday. "Watch Your Husband," the musical comedy offering of the Keystone Folies for today and tomorrow, is not only extraordinarily funny, but it abounds in catchy songs, in clever and graceful dances, in attractive new scenery, and in lavishly costumed. "Watch Your Husband" is a sure cure for the blues.

Caused in Argonne, Leaving Stomach in Deplorable Condition; Now Better Than Ever, Since Taking Herb Sap.

"I was gassed in the Argonne while serving with Co. A, 3rd Machine Gun Battalion A. I. P." says William Szore, recently honorably discharged from the U. S. Army and now residing in Louisville, Ky. "It left my stomach in a deplorable condition and what little I could eat never tasted good or agreed with me. I went back to the foundry, to work at my old trade as a moulder, but the heat gave me such cramps in my stomach I was forced to lay off immediately. During one of these spells I saw Herb Sap advertised in the paper, so commenced taking it. To my delight, it fixed me up in good shape, I picked up in health rapidly and I now feel better in every way. My stomach is in better shape than it ever was. My wife has also been taking Herb Sap and thinks the world and all of it. She, too, feels and looks 100 per cent better than ever before. It sure is a wonderful tonic."

Herb Sap is now sold here at Fisher & Strick's Pharmacy. If your favorite druggist is out of it, have him get it for you from his wholesaler. — Adv.

Dear Miss Wise—I want to propose to a girl whom I have known for years and want to know if it will be all right to do so by letter. We haven't seen each other for a few months but have corresponded regularly. There is no question about our love at that time. I understand long ago. The reason I want to pop the question on paper is because she lives several hundred miles from here and I cannot get off to go and see her now.

Yours truly,

The Diary Of An Engaged Girl

By Phyllis Phillips

THE NOTE

Here is the note:

"Dear Dolly—I tremble to believe that not again we can meet for I have seen your mother and she does not seem to love Elton at all. I must see you myself, so be kind and gracious as love itself and write to your mother and husband and tell her of my love and my devotion to you. I live only to please you, to hear your voice in my ears, and feel once more the breath of your sweet lips upon my cheek."

There was more than this, but after all it's a letter and must not be quoted, but I know that I am really engaged, which is a delightful thing, though a glorious thought.

I have read and re-read his letter until I know it by heart. Can't blame one like it in my whole life before. This is life, real life. This is what I have dreamed about ever since I was a wee little. And, oh, I feel so wildly excited and sort of dizzily happy. I feel as though the very earth were different, somehow, as though I had a new pair of eyes that see only beauty and sunshine and love. And as though my feet and limbs were made of vapor, so light do they feel. I can't imagine what has come over me at all.

Mother, of course, said and lectured me for a full hour. I was disappointed to think that she could do so, on this, my very first day in love. She certainly is not following the old adage: "When you're in love, do as the Romans." For these things, people don't seem to peek at each other at all. Of course they have but temper, but they don't "nag."

I let mother run on to her heart's content, bless her, for I had a view of the white roofs and tall cypress trees and beyond the old city wall and far into the Borghese gardens. The sky seemed to quiver the whole city with its vivid blue and, anyhow, so much sunlight as there is here puts sunshine into one's heart. I give mother one more day to succumb to it.

Then there was another reason. I have discerned that when I remain perfectly silent in the face of all arguments or certain lectures they blow over so much more quickly. This is a new and very good form. I have suffered too much from same not to know it. Hence my quiet demeanor when ever scolded.

Nothing matters just now but the thing at hand, and the strange new fire and lightness that is in my soul and body. I don't think I even heard the first ten words of mother's lecture, for I was thinking of the career of Elton's arm and the fact that I had seen in two black eyes at mid-night.

I kissed my little mummy at last. That mollified her and she finally departed, leaving me to my peace again. Three minutes after she had left there came a discreet knock at the door and a page handed me this note with the remark that the count begged me to give an immediate answer, as he would wait below until I came. My last. I feel like the heroine in some fairy tale.

Billy knew that no serious harm had been done when he bumped into the young lady and so, instead of stopping to lend a helping hand he took advantage of the connection, to force ahead and very soon found himself standing close to the head of the biggest of the elephants.

Some of my readers know how funny it feels to be right up to one of these great beasts. Billy felt the same way, only more so. He didn't dare to move for fear of attracting attention. The thought passed through his mind that, big as he was, he would not make more than five or six bites for the monster. He remembered now the story that Bob had told him of the way he ran and hid when he saw the elephant marching toward him. He had no longer despised Bob for this and only wished he could do the same thing.

But bye and bye, as nothing seemed to happen, he began to feel better and take notice. Then it was that he discovered the elephant's great trunk.

"I declare," said Billy to himself, "that must be his hitching strap and he is loose, too. I believe that I will hold on to it till his keeper comes. That will make me solid with him. There is nothing like standing in with the management. Perhaps he will give me something to eat for I am getting awfully hungry. I didn't thought of it before, but I am. There has been so much going on all day that I have quite neglected my health. I'll be sick tomorrow when I get home if I am not careful, and then Polly Parrot, as likely as not, will spread the story all over Cleveland Farm that I have been off on a spree. She is mean enough to do anything that kind is."

By this time Billy had advanced to the place where the end of the elephant's trunk was dangling on the ground and quick as a cat he had planted his two feet on it.

Poor Billy, he little knew what that bit of mistaken kindness was to cost him.

To his utter amazement and horror the supposed hitching strap began to

The dance given by the Juniors last evening in the Elk Auditorium was one of the most enjoyable of the many social events of the early fall. The music furnished for the evening was by the Columbia Quintet of Portsmouth. A large number of guests from Huntington, Ashland, Portsmouth, Chillicothe and Russell were present.

Miss Molly Brothers of Portsmouth arrived Thursday to visit at the home of Mrs. Belle Brothers and family of South Seventh street and to be present at the wedding of Miss Bess Brothers and Mr. Gilbert Newman of Columbus.

What a shout went up! How the people came rushing that way! In the middle of all the excitement and din, Billy heard first of all, and it seemed to him louder than all, Tom Street, who yelled at the top of his voice: "Look, Harry, it's Billy Walker!" "Holy Smoke!" was all Harry could say in reply, he was so astonished. "Billy jumps—into more trouble to morrow!" Copyrighted by the Sanfield Publishing Co., Akron, O.

WOMAN SPEAKER FORCEFULLY DEFENDS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Mrs. Lydia W. Holmes of New Orleans delighted the hundreds of people who gathered in the high school to hear her speak last night with the clear humor and ready wit with which she interspersed her political talk. At times, becoming serious, she stressed the dangerous situation that was facing the country and urged the people to combat it by voting the straight Democratic ticket.

Charging that it was only the un-American and subtle underhand element in the country that was fighting the League of Nations and that Article Ten was really the Monroe Doctrine of the league, Mrs. Holmes brought repeated cheers from the audience by her statements against the opponents of the league.

"The League of Nations is a cause that has been greatly misrepresented during the last 18 months," asserted the speaker, "and the charge that it is Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations is both false and malicious. Years before Wilson was born great men were planning as to how they could stop all war and Wilson was the instrument merely because he happened to be president. When Wilson went abroad he was on the job. McKinley, the beloved president of all the American people would have gone abroad after the Spanish-American war if it had not been for illness."

Heartily Welcomed
By Governor Coolidge

"When Woodrow Wilson returned from France with the covenant of the League of Nations he was heartily welcomed by Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts who promised him all the help in his power in making the league a reality," said Mrs. Holmes. "How short is the human memory. Today Coolidge is fighting the League of Nations to the best of his ability. When Wilson returned the first thing he did was to call before him the foreign relations committee and took down their suggestions with regard to the league and took them back to France with the assurance that the committee stood behind him. Senator Harding was a member of that committee and he should have spoken at that time if he had any objections to the covenant or forever keep his peace as an American citizen."

"Some people ask why Wilson did not take the foreign relations committee to France with him," said the speaker. "Wouldn't President Wilson have had a fine time in Europe along with Senator Harding? What constructive plan has Senator Harding that he could take to Washington with him? If he has one I should like to know what it is."

"One woman said that Article 23 prohibited illegal traffic in women and children," said the Democratic speaker, "but the latter apologized and said that the press misrepresented her. O, how much the press misrepresents."

The gold star mothers of America, those mothers whose sons are sleeping beneath the soil of France, that this country might be free, are in favor of the League of Nations," said the speaker in pleading for the acceptance of the league, and "when you go to the polls to vote, think what these mothers gave and how little you can give in comparison."

Mrs. Holmes quoted a statement given out by ex-President Taft in which he said in August 1920: "Personally I find that I should work for the 'One Force.' The vacillation and lack of principle of Senator Harding does not recommend him to me."

Party Has Done
Much For Country
"The Democratic party has done more for the country in the last eight years than has been done since the Civil War," charged the speaker in answer to criticisms of the administration "and if we should lose this campaign because of the un-American interests and business interests against us, who are taking advantage of a rare question to get into power, the women will turn out and aid the men in forming such an organization as will forever politically bury the Republican party after the next four years."

The speaker charged that the Republican party was falsely misrepresenting when they said they had secured the suffrage for women.

"Timmy Cox, God bless him, got in communication with the governor of Tennessee and he said they would not across the suffrage movement and Cox sent a personal representative to aid in the fight, while Senators Moses and Brantley had their men there fighting the movement. I know because I was there."

Hon. Grover C. Maxwell, in his speech, attacked the coterie in the Senate that dragged the League of Nations into politics and predicted that after November 2, "Harding would have plenty of time to look after the daily issues of the Nation Star."

Mr. Maxwell attacked Harry E. Davis in his candidacy for governor of Ohio and urged the people to cast their votes for Donahay. "The verdict of the women of America on November 2," asserted Maxwell, "will show that war throughout the world must cease."

NEW SHALE REFINING CO. IS INCORPORATED FOR $500,000

Oil from shale is the industry that is to be promoted by the Duck Run Oil and Refining Company, incorporated Thursday at Columbus by local men with a capital stock of $500,000.

The incorporators are W. E. Tripp, Dr. H. H. Morgan, P. H. Harsha, W. J. Kent and C. F. Dittell, all local men. The incorporation is the result of many laboratory tests that have been made of oil shale since last February.

According to the incorporators the industry of extracting oil and by products from shale will be second to none within the county within three years. It has been one of the biggest industries in Scotland for years and within the last few years as the demand grows greater and greater the industry is coming into its own in this country.

The laboratory tests have been going on since February in Mr. Tripp's office and the oil received in these tests was taken through a refining process that proved the oil was of the best quality.

The men have kept their tests quiet and only until the last few days have they let their friends view their laboratory tests which are still going on. There are 54 shales in the county but only two have been found oil bearing. These are the carbon and clay shales and samples of these two are being taken from all parts of the county.

As tests are being made of each. The oil is not the kind that can be taken from the shale deposits through drilling but it must be extracted through a distillation process. The oil is brought out by heat and besides the oil that is recovered from the distilled vapors there are by products such as ammonia sulphate and potash and gas. The company has already leased over 300 acres of shale land in this county and Adams county. They are not stopping at this but are still taking samples of shale and additional land will be leased.

The work of the company will be first to open a quarry, this to be followed by the erection of a retort and this by a refining plant. Most of the oil shale companies have their quarry and retort but do not have their own refinery, but as the best returns are in the refining business the local company intends to have a complete plant in order to market the pure oil and gas and by products.

CHIROPRACTIC TALKS

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BRONCHITIS

Acute Bronchitis is a catarrhal inflammation of the bronchial mucosa affecting the first and second divisions of the bronchial tubes and usually both sides, this is sometimes spoken of as a cold on the chest.

Chronic Bronchitis is a chronic inflammation of the bronchial mucosa, and is a continuation of the acute form, with difficult breathing, cough and expectoration.

Bronchiectasis is a form of chronic Bronchitis, accompanied with the formation of caecules in the tubes, which are filled with a purulent secretion, it may affect one or many tubes on one or both sides.

Fibrinous Bronchitis is a plastic inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the tubes, this form of bronchitis is accompanied by the formation and expulsion of fibrinous casts, and is sometimes called membranous bronchitis.

In bronchial obstruction a decrease in the size of the tube or total closure is brought about by pressure from the outside, a growth or constriction.

In bronchial asthma there is a chronic affection of the bronchi, in this there is great difficulty in breathing at times, with wheezing sounds and a sense of constriction in the chest, which usually produces coughing and expectoration.

In acute bronchitis there is a slight chilliness with a mild fever, which may be preceded with a cold in the head, and the throat becomes sore, sometimes causing a slight hoarseness, constriction in the chest and substernal pain, the cough is dry at first, but later becomes loose, and accompanied with expectoration, respiration is accelerated and the breathing sounds are harsh.

There are two varieties of chronic bronchitis, Dry Catarrh with the dry hacking cough, which is as a rule associated with chronic laryngitis. And Moist Catarrh which is accompanied with profuse expectoration and cough which is greatest in the morning, the digestion is sometimes disturbed, the tongue is coated and there is a foul odor of the breath.

Bronchiectasis is a form of chronic bronchitis, in which the secretion becomes purulent with paroxysmal coughing during the morning; when the patient is in a recumbent position during sleep the secretion accumulates in the saccules, in the morning or when the position is changed the saccules overflow causing the purulent secretion to come in contact with the healthy mucous membrane below, irritating it, resulting in coughing and expectoration.

The above are the principle conditions that will be encountered in bronchial trouble, although the symptoms are not all mentioned, any one troubled with any of the above conditions will at once realize that something is radically wrong, and should waste no time in having the cause of the trouble corrected.

Chiropractors claim that the true and primary cause of bronchial trouble is nerve pressure somewhere along the spinal column, which is out of normal alignment.

Isn't it reasonable and logical that if every vertebra in the spine is in its proper position, that there can be no nerve pressure, and where there is no nerve pressure, Nature can and will do all that is necessary to keep the body well and strong, now this means one hundred per cent resistance, nothing more, nothing less, and if you possess this it is impossible for disease or sickness to gain entrance into the body. Nature has all the necessities to guard the body from disease if only given the opportunity to use them.

The Science of Chiropractic is in accordance with the laws of Nature, it gets at the cause of disease, that is why it is so successful, it removes the cause and Nature does the rest, simple if you know how, isn't it!

Things that so many people think are impossible are the very things that Chiropractic has overcome time and time again, these are not theories, but proven facts. It is for you to decide whether or not to try Chiropractic, or continue to suffer.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR HEART TROUBLE

The valves of the heart are for the purpose of guarding the openings, so as to prevent the regurgitation of blood into the cavity from which it has been forced. Defects of any of these valves permits regurgitation or obstruction to the flow of the blood and is commonly spoken of as valvular or organic disease of the heart.

There are various forms of valvular defects, such as aortic Incompetency, Aortic Stenosis, Mitral Incompetency, Mitral Stenosis, Tricuspid Incompetency, Tricuspid Stenosis, Pulmonary Incompetency and Pulmonary Stenosis.

Valvular Incompetency is an abnormal condition of the valve in which it is impossible to properly close the orifice, thus allowing a regurgitation of blood into the cavity from which it has been forced.

Valvular Stenosis is a condition in which the normal amount of blood is prevented from passing through the valve. Stenosis may result from a constriction of the circular muscular fibers surrounding the orifice, or from a thickening of the valve segments, making them non-flexible and unevenly shaped, or there may be a calcareous deposit upon the segments so that they project inward and can not be pressed back by the blood. Stenosis may also result from adhesions of these segments.

Acute Endocarditis is an excessive heat or inflammation of the inner lining of the heart, when this condition is slight, symptoms may be very moderate, but if it is more severe there is a sudden chill and a rapid and high rise in the bodily temperature and fever takes an irregular course. During the paroxysms of fever there may be delirium, stupor and coma with murmurs corresponding to the valves affected, which may contain ulcerations, permanently deforming them.

Chronic Endocarditis is a continuation of the acute form resulting in deformity of the valve segments, with regurgitation or stenosis.

An overgrowth or increase in the muscular tissue of the heart walls is known as hypertrophy of the heart.

When the cavities of the heart are increased in size out of proportion to the thickness of their walls, it is termed dilatation of the heart.

Acute Myocarditis is an inflammation or excessive heat of the muscular tissues of the heart, which may be suppurative or non-suppurative.

Owing to limited space it is impossible to state the symptoms for the valvular defects or abnormalities of the heart, but any one afflicted with any of the above mentioned inco-ordinations should first of all try to determine the cause, and have it corrected; once that is done Nature will take care of the inco-ordination.

Abnormal conditions of the tissues of the body are caused by the lack of proper nerve impulse (life force) to the parts, due to impingement of one or more nerves where they leave the spinal column. The Chiropractor adjusts the vertebrae, thus releasing the impinged nerves and allowing the free transmission of the nerve force to the parts. Nature will then soon restore the affected parts back to their normal condition. If you are in doubt, ask some of your friends what Chiropractic has done for them, then consult a competent Chiropractor. He will be glad to explain Chiropractic to you and furnish you with literature on the subject.

Remember this, a perfect spine means perfect health. Chiropractic (Spinal Adjustments) by means of adjusting the subluxated vertebrae, correct the cause and normal condition or health, is the result.

Hallowe'en Celebrators Warned By Chief Distel

Complaints which poured into police headquarters Thursday night and this morning of misdeeds on Hallowe'en cel-

Persons indulging in innocent pranks will not be molested, but the soaping of windows, throwing litter on porches and carrying away property are some of the things put under a ban and the police have been instructed to bring in all offenders.

Parents Of Weak, Ailing Children

Will Be Interested In This Letter

A mother writes: "My little girl was weak, piny and tired all the time, did not want to do anything. Vinol was recommended—it built up her strength and made her healthy, so now she runs and plays like other children and is robust and rosy."

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the very elements needed to create red corpuscles in the blood, quicken the circulation, increase the appetite and soon strength and vitality is imparted to every part of the body.

Your druggist sells Vinol, therefore do not accept any substitute.—Adv.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT

It required a jury less than 20 minutes to return a verdict in favor of the defendant in the replevin case of R. P. Seiler, Fourth street piano dealer, against Sanford Cunningham, New Boston grocer, which was tried in Judge William McManis' court at New Boston Thursday.

The suit was brought to settle a dispute over the possession of a talking machine which the defendant bought on the installment plan some time ago through a salesman of the plaintiff and a dispute arose over the payments. The evidence disclosed that the salesman had taken groceries on the bill and the account was set up as a counter claim which the jury allowed and awarded Cunningham immediate possession of the property involved. It was "Tough as Hickory." "Tough as hickory" is a phrase suggesting the peculiar strength and elasticity of the hickory wood and it may be for that reason your favorite, Gen. Andrew Jackson was endearingly called "Old Hickory" by his soldiers because of his tough, unyielding disposition. This nickname may have been bestowed during the war with the Creek Indians in 1813, when he fed his men on hickory nuts over a period when they were short of rations.

Celebrate Birthday Anniversaries On Same Day

By an odd coincidence the birthday anniversaries of Justice James Platt and Emory P. Evans, both of whom are members of the clerical force at the probate office, falls on the same day, Oct. 29. Their anniversaries came yesterday when Evans reached his fifty-ninth milestone and the Platt registered up fifty-five years. Evans is a native Buckeye while Platt is a product of the Buckeye state, having been born in Missouri in 1865.

Spoke In Columbus

Rev. Father Carter of Boston, who recently returned from Europe, delivered a lecture last night in the St. Paul church in Columbus. His subject was "The Irish Question," with which he is thoroughly familiar.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR HOME SEEKERS

Although the houses being erected by the Portsmouth Home Building Company are just being rooted at present, they have already been a considerable number of inquiries concerning them. The fact that all materials are being bought in large quantities and consequently at better figures than could have been possible for the average builder has convinced a number of prospective buyers that these houses are well worth investigating. The additional fact that the contractors were able to figure a little lower because of the size of the jobs and that the backers are only getting a low return on their money means to the thoughtful buyer that he is getting in on the ground floor and that he can buy at a price that will not only protect him against any probable depreciation, but will enable to reach the property very likely at a profit.

Resinol
would soothe that itching skin

The first application of Resinol Ointment usually takes the itch and burn right out of eczema and similar skin eruptions. This gentle, healing ointment seems to get right at the root of the trouble, and is almost sure to restore skin health in a short time.

Bottled, Ointment and Soap at all druggists.

ALL EYE STRAIN SHOULD GET ATTENTION.

There is no such thing as eye strain that is slight enough to be neglected. Any error of refraction that is important enough to produce eye strain is important enough to demand correction. And here is another point—nothing is gained by putting it off from time to time. In cases of eye strain DO IT NOW should be the practice. We correct all degrees of eye strain with glasses.

Address To Market Crops As

Demand Requires The

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Resolutions urging that all crops be marketed as the demand requires, and that congress conduct an investigation of interest rates charged by banks adopted today by the farmers' alliance in session here.

All farmers were urged to join existing co-operative marketing organizations or organize new ones. Progress was asked to give the farm loan board authority to sell in the open market stock securities based on warehouse receipts issued under the federal storage act.

Delegates to the conference predicted the resolution for market the demand requires as authority holding movement of cotton, and other great farm staples resolutions as adopted were demanded by the policy committee was applauded at the conference yesterday.

Benjamin C. Marsh, secretary of the Farmers' National Council, was the first to sign the committee, submitting a minority one. A representative of the national grange (the committee also announced) did not sign the majority report, which was adopted with little opposition.

SAYS SHE STARTED TO IMPROVE RIGHT AWAY

Tells How Vola-Tonic Brought Her Good Health and Says It Was The Only Thing To Help Her.

"I could notice an improvement in my condition after taking just the first bottle of Vola-Tonic and now, since taking seven bottles of this medicine, I am greatly improved," said Mrs. Josephine Lantz, Sixth and Main streets, Covington.

"For a long time my stomach and kidneys have been out of order," Mrs. Lantz continued. "My stomach was in such bad condition that I could hardly bear the sight of food. Of course, I didn't care for anything to eat at all, and if I forced myself to eat I belched and bloated and was in misery afterward."

"My kidneys were out of order also. I noticed a frequent swelling of my feet and ankles."

"I couldn't sleep right at night, either, or get proper rest and finally got to feeling so bad that I couldn't do the housework."

"I became more worried every day about my condition, because I tried a great many different medicines and nothing did me any good."

"Finally a friend asked me why I didn't try Vola-Tonic and on her recommendation I bought a bottle of this medicine and started taking it."

"As I said, I could notice improvement after taking the first bottle of Vola-Tonic. I have now taken seven bottles in all and am greatly improved. My stomach is in much better condition. I can eat anything I want now and I enjoy everything I eat. My kidneys seem to be in much better condition also because I don't notice the swelling of my feet and ankles so much."

"I intend to take four or five more bottles of Vola-Tonic because I believe it will continue to do me a great deal of good."

"If you are feeling weak and run-down, get a bottle of Vola-Tonic to-day. Vola-Tonic has brought strength and health to thousands of weakened, run-down men and women."

VOLA-TONIC, "Builder of Strength." is sold in Portsmouth by Fisher & Stretch and all other good druggists.

NOTE: All Vola-Tonic testimonials are absolutely the whole truth. The original signed testimonials are on file at the office of the Vola Remedies Co., Cincinnati, O., and are open for inspection of the public at any time.—Adv.

Sunday School Lesson

UPOOT THE CORRUPT TREE

—BY DR. JONATHAN E. HAWK

Moral progress is by slow stages. Here and there a leader appears who strikes forward with the standard and places it upon some high eminence, but it takes time to get the many up to the higher attitude.

The God-conquered heretic usually comes first. He can add the golden beam of justice toward justice yonder in the distance. He sees because he is mastered by a divine faith in mankind. He believes men are capable of growth. He believes they can come to the light on any moral issue, believe they will understand and follow the truth, believe the four broad of false prophets in sheep's clothing designated as "wolves" in the Sunday School lesson for this week can easily be distinguished from sheep.

The "heretic" is the man who dares stand alone at the stern winnowing crisis and choose his course. "Ever the course of truth brings fame and profit and its prosperous to be just is not deceived by denegations. He is not cowed by the party lash. He can stand torture and is not afraid of death," said Black Hawk, the famous Sioux Chief, characterizing the Indian in his farewell address to the tribe. Apt characterization of Savonarola and Huss and Luther and Knox and Wesley and the band of social heretics who dared challenge the divine right of the oligarchy in America.

But yesterday the liquor traffic was ready to defy the very government of the United States. It challenged the "temperance cranks" to do their worst. Men thought so power on earth could break the mighty strength of the organized liquor interests. Today there is more so poor as to do John Barleycorn reverence. Sober prosperous America stands with her feet upon dry candidates are should ask someone the neck of the monster evil. The Eighteenth Amendment, and the Volstead Act are a reality as violators of the prohibition laws are learning daily every day. But look out for the wolf with a sheep skin on his back.

There is an organized effort to make null and void the constitution. A widespread violation of the prohibition law has filled the federal dockets full. The voters of Ohio in this year of Grace 1920 has had to watch well to his ballot. Let no one be deceived by the faces of the liquor traffic among candidates? Find them out. Support them regardless of party. By their fruits ye shall know them. A corrupt tree cannot bring forth good fruit. A straight ticket is the way of the politician, but it will not elect dry men this year. Be assured the bootlegger and moonshiner will not vote a straight ticket.

The moral sense of the commonwealth will certainly make itself felt at the November election. Ohio is among the class of Outlaw States at present. With a prohibition amendment adopted by the people and placed on the Constitution of the State, yet Ohio has no law to enforce the Constitution.

House Bill 620 known as the "For Law Enforcement" bill provides the means of making the Constitution effective.

The way to work that little ballot is to pick it out first at the election booth and mark X to the left of the word "Yes." If every qualified voter—man and woman—votes his Christian conviction there will not be many wet Republicans and Democrats elected Nov. 2. And House Bill 620 will be approved by 100,000 majority. The Christian who does not know who the dry candidates are should ask someone who is more of a dry than he is a politician. "Beware of False Prophets in Sheep's Clothing."

IT COSTS TOO MUCH TO BE SICK

Keep Your Blood in Good Condition and You Throw Off Disease

Pay Attention To Your Health No Need To Take Chances With It. Pepto-Mangan Makes Rich, Red Blood

When you first feel a tired, all-gone feeling and look pale, your blood is losing in quality. Weak, impoverished blood has no power to fight disease. It takes red blood to keep you well. If you keep your blood in good condition it will fight off disease. You will not be such a heavy prey to long and expensive sickness. With this blood you take chances every day.

There's no need doing that. You can take Pepto-Mangan and build up rich, red blood. With red blood you are able to win in the fight against prevailing diseases. Try Pepto-Mangan. It comes in tablet or liquid form. Take either kind. The tablet has the same medicinal value as the liquid. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Ask for "Gude's" and be sure that the name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package—adv.

"THE HOLY CITY" A POPULAR ORATORIO

Since Alfred R. Gault, of Birmingham, Ala., and soprano solo, "There Are Many, England, wrote his "Holy City," "They Which Came." A ladies' chorus in 1882, it has been one of the most popular of oratorios. American auditors, especially, have found it peculiarly appealing. The idea of the City, Yonder, "They That Sow in Tears," of God as the great consummation of, and the great finale: "Bible Is the Christian Life Is Inspiring, restful and reaches the heart in a way all its own."

ROBERTSON-COLE
SUPER-SPECIAL

The Picture You Want to See Is at The Eastland Theatre for Two Days, Starting Tonight—Lew Cody, the Screen's Greatest Love-Maker, in "The Butterfly Man." A Masterpiece of Motion Picture Art—A Picture of Woman's Conventions And Men's Intentions—It Will Dazzle You With Delight—Come Early for Good Seats—Also Showing Robin Comedy—Pathe Review—Topics of the Day and Orchestra.

Program Tonight
A—Overture, specially selected by the orchestra.
B—Feature, Lew Cody in "The Butterfly Man."
C—Topics of the Day.

D—Pathe Review.
E—Vanity Fair Girls in "Alias Aladdin."

In looking Lew Cody in "The Butterfly Man," the screen version of George Barr McCutcheon's satirical novel of that most interesting cross-section of American life described by society editors as the "Four Hundred," the Eastland Theatre is living up to its reputation of presenting for its discerning clientele photographs of distinctive charm and merit. The picture, a Robertson-Cole Special, will begin its run tonight.

Lew Cody firmly established himself as the greatest love-maker of the screen in "The Beloved Cheater," a picture which scored a tremendous success. In "The Butterfly Man" he sustains this reputation to the satisfaction of even the most carping critics. His love-making intrigues are exposed after a motonic career achieved through the sacrifice of his mother and sister. His regeneration takes place after six reels of interesting action. The picture story of McCutcheon's popular novel is one of the most beautiful ever screened.

Women everywhere will be interested to know that this remarkable photograph, besides holding for them a special interest because of the drama's theme and the great beauty and variety of the scenes shown by the future prince of the leading feminine roles, also registers another victory in their long fight for emancipation.

Has Universal Appeal
The appeal of the latest Gold picture is not limited to any one class, however. Its appeal is universal. Men as well as women will find in this establishment the great "Rose Cottage" scene, depicting a society function in the elaborate ballroom of a multimillionaire.

Extra low prices on our entire stock of Men's, Ladies' and Children's Shoes.

God forgot—where women slash and scar their bodies to make them beautiful, where men torture their faces out of all human semblance, where children's playthings are human skulls. The only pictures ever made of these astounding people, now fast vanishing from the earth. Here's a real thriller—see it sure. Also a two reel comedy.

William Desmond A BROADWAY COWBOY

The Gay White Way Mixed With The Wild And Woolly! You'll Thoroughly Enjoy Yourself at The Strand Tonight and Tomorrow With "A Broadway Cowboy."

William Desmond in "A Broadway Cowboy" will furnish the feature attraction at the Strand tonight and tomorrow. It is a Jesse D. Hampton Pathe production adapted from Byron Morgan's story, and is chock full of fast-action, thrills, humor and romance.

The story gives William Desmond a role entirely different than any in which he has previously appeared. Also Bill the Broadway matinee hero of a wild west melodrama, Bill never expected to get in any closer touch to real Western life than he was when enacting his role in the play.

The show goes "on the road" and hits Montana, where the actor gets arrested, and nearly lynched for an intentional horse stealing. But then Betty, from the West, with whom he fell in love while playing in New York, rescues him in just the same way the leading lady did in his play. Also Bill the Broadway matinee hero of a wild west melodrama, Bill never expected to get in any closer touch to real Western life than he was when enacting his role in the play.

WILLIAM RUSSELL A LIVE-WIRE HICK

A Big Double Feature Program at the Exhibit Theatre Tonight—William Russell in a Mile a Minute Comedy-Drama, "A Live Wire Hick," and Jacques Jaccard's Thriller of the Northwest, "A Son of the North."

William Russell, popular young star of screen adventure, whose hair-raising encounters with all sorts and conditions of villainous and his rescues of innumerable endangered maidens have endeared him to motion picture enthusiasts everywhere, has a new sort of role in the latest American release.

"A Live-Wire Hick" is shown at the Exhibit tonight. It depicts him as an ambitious newspaper editor, bent on making a million and marrying the prettiest girl in New York.

As the story runs, Nick Fowler, who is Russell, finds New York's game a hard one to beat. He determines to write a glowing account of his adventures in New York, and just as he completes it, in walks Jimmie Ryan, formerly of Holbrook, but now a prosperous director of the Lighthouse motion picture studios. Nick tells of his disillusionment, but shows this new friend the letter he has written. The director of the Lighthouse is all business in a moment. He pays $1,000 for it on the spot and Nick is launched on the sea of prosperity.

The other feature tonight is Jacques Jaccard's thrilling northwestern drama, "Son of the North," featuring Leonard Chapman and Virginia Fane.

PIPELESS CALORIC FURNACE

A Practical, Efficient Method of Heating Without Pipes Through Only One Register

What It Does

The CALORIC, the Original Patented Pipeless Furnace, heats your entire home, new or old, three rooms to eighteen, through one register.

The CALORIC heats uniformly and thoroughly. Whether your house be of the bungalow type, with all rooms on one floor, or two or three stories high—all the rooms will be warm and comfortable.

The CALORIC saves from one-third to one-half of your fuel. The same amount of coal, coke or wood which will heat two or three rooms with stoves, will heat the entire house through the CALORIC. Or, if you are now heating your entire house, the CALORIC will do the same work better with one-half to two-thirds as much fuel.

The CALORIC is easily and quickly installed in any house, new or old, and without interfering with your present heating system. Where there is no cellar, a pit can be dug large enough to hold the furnace and the fuel supply.

The CALORIC reduces fire risk, as all the heat comes up through the center of the register, while the cool air is constantly passing down through the outer part of the register, where it comes in contact with the floor.

Over fifty thousand enthusiastic owners from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Oregon, testify that the CALORIC is and does all and more than we claim. The CALORIC is also giving splendid results in stores, factories, churches and halls. Can you afford not to investigate?

-and How It Does It

The CALORIC is not a pipe furnace with the pipes left off, and neither is it an experiment hastily put together for the purpose of meeting a demand. It is specially designed and built from the ground up to heat buildings more uniformly, economically and satisfactorily than they have ever been heated by other systems.

The CALORIC works through Nature's own laws of circulation by the movement of air currents. Warm air rises naturally. Cold air falls. Warm air and cold air cannot occupy the same space at the same time, any more than cold water and warm water can do so.

In the same volume that the warm air is distributed into the house, an equal amount of cold air is drawn into the furnace, where it is heated, moistened by the vapor from the two gallon water pan, and then recirculated through the register. This process continues as long as the fire is kept burning.

Thus there is created a constant circulation of properly moistened warm air. Just as running water purifies itself, so this circulating warm air, passing constantly through heat of from three hundred to eight hundred degrees, in which no germ can live, is kept pure and healthful.

Now this is merely an outline of the principles of operation of the CALORIC. A full description is given in an interesting and instructive manner in our CALORIC Catalog. Call at our store, phone or write us for a copy.

The CALORIC is manufactured and guaranteed by The Monitor Stove Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, makers of heating appliances for 59 years.

No "Pussyfooting" Here We Have CUT The PRICES

Owing to recent reductions in the wool and woolen markets we are convinced that we can replace our present stocks for much less than we paid for them and there isn't a clothing store in the United States that cannot do the same thing. Other clothiers may continue their pussy footing methods relative to the lowering of clothing prices to the level justified by replacement values, as long as they like. We're red-blooded enough to take the initiative in this great sacrifice—entailing readjustment movement, because we feel it to be our patriotic duty as well as good business judgment to do so.

All Clothing, Shoes, Hats and Furnishings

Clothing prices are going to take a tumble, the hand writing is on the wall. A drastic readjustment is on the way. But it will be six months or more in coming because retailers are inconveniently stocked with highest priced merchandise the world has ever known and are endeavoring to get out from under without a loss. We, however, feel that the general clothes-buying public is entitled to the new prices now, and we are backing our convictions with a general sacrifice. This store has always sold the very best values possible. Today we assume the leadership in putting clothing prices back where they used to be in the good old days before the war; are you with us? Games This Week

Friday, October 29—Waltons vs. Tramps, Play House alleys.
Friday, October 29—Troyals vs. Survivors, Pennant alleys.

Those Mutuals rise up in their strength at the Play House alleys last night and whacked the Wholesalers a couple of times in the art of bowling, due primarily to the fact that the Wholesalers were without the assistance of William Briggs and were forced to use a blind. The games were hard fought and extremely close, the result being in doubt until the last ball was thrown.

When a boy gets out of his teens, his one ambition is to reach his 21st birthday, and the one ambition of a bowler is to get across the 500 mark. That ambition can be realized once in a life time is shown by the work of E. C. McCoy and his terrific speed. McCoy, who has been going very well this season, turned in a very ordinary game to begin with, and then sailed forth with blood in his eye and as much courage as a Yank in No Man's Land. No one really expected "Mac" to do the happy stunt, but he began making that mood fore and aft and never stopped until he got 200. A little encouragement was all Mac needed for he went right back and had the needed energy in the last game, getting 154, bringing his total to 545, the highest mark of his life. Jesse Roberts, another man for the Wholesalers, had a good night, leading Anchor Man Patton of the Mutuals every game and getting 515 to George's 489. Frank Webb, another 500 and felled to death with his last game of 201. E. A. Ryan did well for him, gathering 172, a tie with Captain Cleburn of the Wholesalers.

CHICAGO, October 29.—New back field combinations are being tried out by Coach Stagg in an effort to increase the attacking power of the Maroons. Crisler, formerly a star end, apparently has become a fixture at right back.

MINNEAPOLIS, October 29.—The lineup for the game between the Maroons and the Vikings, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, is expected to be a matter of conjecture. Coach Williams is shifting his men with every workout, his latest move being to try out an entirely new set of ends.

PHILADELPHIA, N. J., October 29.—Don Lore, star quarterback, and Garretty Witter, got back into the lineup today after a one day layoff. Coach Roper is already pointing the Varsity for the Harvard game a week from next Saturday.

MACSWINEY'S BODY TAKEN FROM RELATIVES; SENT DIRECT TO CORK

VIOLENT SCENE WHEN LORD MAYOR'S FAMILY DRAGGED FROM TRAIN

HOLYHEAD, WALES, Oct. 28.—(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS).—When day broke this morning over the Irish sea, the steamer Rathmore, bearing the body of the late Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, who died Monday in Brixton prison, London, was steaming southward off the Welsh headlands on its way to that city.

At the same hour, the relatives of MacSwiney, who refused to board the ship provided to take them, with the lord mayor's body to Cork, were on their way to Dublin, almost directly across the narrow strait which divides Ireland from Erin. The relatives left Holyhead at 2:30 o'clock, a little more than an hour after the Rathmore disappeared in the darkness which shrouded the coast.

Shipment of MacSwiney's body from Cork was provided by a violent scene, in which blows were struck and members of the lord mayor's family were dragged from their railway coach at the Holyhead railway station. They refused to consent to the government's plan to take the body to Cork instead of Dublin, and it was only after they had been placed under armed temporary arrest that the body was taken from the train and loaded to the dock where the Rathmore was waiting.

The first stop after the train left Brixton station was at Crews, just outside of London, where the superintendent of the London Metropolitan police in charge of three coaches filled with constables accompanying the party, was handed a letter by a messenger. It was signed by Sir Hamar Greenwood, secretary for Ireland, and was addressed to the widow of the late lord mayor. It read:

"Madam: I am advised that the sending and funeral of the lord mayor of Dublin may lead to a demonstration of a political nature. I regret, therefore, the Irish government cannot allow the disembarkation of his remains at any other port in Ireland except his native city of Cork. In order to save you every inconvenience, the government has directed the London and the Northwestern Railway company to provide a suitable steamer to carry the remains direct to Cork from Holyhead. This steamer will carry you and 20 of your friends, as you so desire."

Sir Hamar's letter was handed to John MacSwiney, brother of the late lord mayor, who remarked that the lady was not on board the train, and demanded the superintendent's authority to obey the Irish secretary's orders, and he was under the jurisdiction of the home office. The superintendent replied the home office had given the Irish secretary authority in this instance.

When the train arrived here, near midnight, a cordon of police was formed around the platform entrances, keeping back a good sized crowd of curious persons, who booed and jeered. Seventy-six "black and tans" formed on the platform and stood at "present arms" as the mourners passed along it. Mr. O'Brien, London executive of the Irish Self-determination League, who represented the family on the funeral train, demanded that the station master fulfill the contract to carry the body to Cork by the way of Kingsdown, a port near Dublin. A conference in the station master's office followed, and that official was arranging for the transference of the body and mourners by way of Kingsdown when an official entered and said the superintendent of police wanted to speak with him.

When the station master returned he said:

"My orders are that the body must be placed on board the Rathmore for shipment to Cork, and they will be cleared."

He intimated force would be used if necessary.

Deputy Mayor O'Callaghan of Cork, shaking his finger in the station master's face, said: "You and your government are body snatchers. You are going to seize a dead body and we refuse to accompany you and your nefarious expedition."

The station master went to the baggage car, where the mourners were grouped around the flower-decked box containing the coffin and ordered the box removed to the steamer. When they heard his order, Annie and Mary MacSwiney, sisters of the dead hunger striker, cried defiantly: "You have murdered our brother and you are not going to arrest his body."

The constables refused to allow the porters to touch the casket, and a police officer ordered the former to leave the car. They declined, and constables who had been called for, finally dragged some of the male mourners from the car. They struck at the police, who drew their truncheons while women in the party shrieked: "Body snatchers—shame!"

They also fought the police who were ejecting them. The Misses MacSwiney claimed that during the melee the police knocked them down. The mourners were then herded to one side, the box was placed on a truck, and closely guarded by police, it was wheeled to the steamer. It was picked up by a crane and was silhouetted against the midnight sky for a moment as it was swung over the steamer's side. It was then lowered into the hold.

Members of the funeral party waited until the Rathmore had left her dock and then went to the pier from which depart steamers for Kingsdown.

Farmers Seek More Credit To Market Crops

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Representatives of agricultural interests, in conference here for the purpose of devising a plan for obtaining more liberal credits for the marketing of farm products, met today with the expectation of acting on the report of a committee named to recommend a method of procedure. Members of the committee said they hoped to be ready to report to the conference during the day.

A general crop holding movement may be inaugurated by farmers of the company, speakers at yesterday's sessions of the conference declared, if the credit situation does not improve. Prevailing market prices, "it was asserted," are not sufficient to cover cost of production and net a reasonable profit.

The conference adopted a resolution yesterday, commending Comptroller of the Currency Williams for "the sympathetic appreciation" shown by him "in the welfare of the farmers" and for "his fearless exposure of the high rates of interest charged by the New York banks."

Lorimer Replies To Governor Cox's Charges

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 28.—Geo. Morris Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, in a statement in reply to charges of "unfair partisanship" on the part of the Post and its editor, made yesterday, by Governor Cox, said:

"It is common knowledge that the Saturday Evening Post is not interested in its stand by a desire for more circulation. Partisanship to Governor Cox means being a thorn in what he stands for. The Saturday Evening Post has always had perfectly clear-cut opinions on politics and other subjects, and has never hesitated to express them."

Many Stricken With Typhoid At Salem, Ohio

ALLIANCE, O., Oct. 28.—Poluted water has caused an epidemic of typhoid fever in Salem, a town of about 11,000 people, east of Alliance. Scores have been stricken with the scourge, and doctors and nurses have been taxed to the limit during the past week. Dr. H. K. Yaggi stated today that twenty doctors were spending practically all of their time attending the patients, and a call has been issued for additional nurses. The exact number who have been stricken with typhoid is not definitely known or given out. One physician stated today that there were sixty-seven cases regarded as serious, and others stated that in their opinion as many as three or four hundred are suffering in a mild way with the scourge. Three clerks of the Springfield-Holworth store of Alliance, who attended an opening of a branch store of that firm at Salem last week, returned home and have been stricken with typhoid as a result of drinking the city water there. Health Officer Dr. H. M. Schwartz stated today that there were eighty-one well defined cases of typhoid fever up to last evening.

THE JUDICIAL BALLOT

ONE of the most important ballots to be handed to voters next Tuesday is the judicial ballot. This ballot has no party emblem on it, the theory of the law being that there should be no partisanship in the selection of judicial candidates, but men should be elected on known ability and integrity. All political parties have in large degree, tried to nullify this law by endorsing and working for members of their party, but the people have shown unerring instinct in choosing the best among the names submitted, regardless of their previous political faiths. And that is right. When we go into court we do not care whether the judge is a Republican or a Democrat, but we do want to know that he is honest, capable and fully acquainted with the laws of the land, and has the courage to administer them impartially.

The Times has given considerable thought to the various candidates and has carefully observed the newspapers of the state and their comments upon judicial candidates. We submit our conclusions below:

For Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio—Hugh L. Nichols. There are three candidates, but you vote for one only. Judge Nichols is the present Chief Justice. He has made an enviable record. Character is of the highest ability unquestioned. He will be supported by the vast majority of the lawyers of Ohio and should be re-elected. Judge Nichols is from Clermont county and politically he is a Democrat.

For Judge of the Supreme Court, long term, six candidates, two only to be elected—Thomas A. Jones and Edward S. Matthews. Both are now serving on the bench. Judge Jones is a Jackson, Ohio man. He served with distinction on our district circuit court, as it was then known, and for six years has set upon the Supreme bench. He is considered one of the ablest jurists in the country, a fine, clean, able, upstanding man. Matthews, too, is serving his first term, during which he has made such a record as justifies his retention on the bench. Both Justices Jones and Matthews are Republicans.

For Justice of the Supreme Court, short term, three candidates, one to be voted for—Coleman Avery—Avery is a Cincinnati man. He was the special prosecutor who had charge of the bonding cases against George B. Cox and his gang and he made a fine reputation for himself. He is now on the bench by appointment to fill an unexpired term. He is a Democrat. His chief opponent is Col. Benson W. Hough, Republican, an officer in the A. E. F., and later known for his activity in Ohio National Guard affairs than for ability as a lawyer. He is a clean man, but not regarded as in Avery's class in knowledge of law. So we recommend Coleman Avery for Justice of the Supreme Court, short term.

For District Court of Appeals, this district, one to be voted for—Rasee J. Mauck, of Gallipolis, Ohio. Judge Mauck is a man of great ability and long experience. He has served as assistant Attorney General, of Ohio, and as Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Gallia county. He has a fine judicial record for fairness and knowledge of law. Judge Mauck is a Republican. His Democratic opponent, Stephen J. McLaughlin, of Pike, is a gentleman of fine character and attainments, but he lacks both the experience in private practice and on the bench, as compared with his rival. Accordingly we recommend Rasee J. Mauck, for Judge of the District Court of Appeals.

For Probate Judge of Scioto County—Nathan B. Gilliland. Judge Gilliland has no opposition. He is a Republican. He has made an exceptionally good record during his first term and is entitled to the unopposed re-election he will receive.

Portsmouth people are interested, as spectators, in the campaign being made by Judge Will P. Stephenson, of West Union, for re-election. He has held court in Portsmouth many times and is known here as a jurist of great ability, integrity and uprightness. He is far above the average small county jurist and lawyers and others here, who have to do with courts, are hopeful that the voters of Adams county will re-elect Judge Stephenson by a decisive majority. It will be a good day's work if they do.

What has become of the old fashioned sign: "For Rent"?

Election only a week off and we have yet to see the first man, or, yes, we forget, or the first woman, that is excited over it.

The spirit of invention seems to be working overtime on new ways to make a living by hook or crook.

The average man does not like to admit it, but his wife's judgment is usually the best in the family.

It is usually a shock to the owner of a new automobile to discover the thing has an appetite like a goat.

A lot of persons who scoff at the ouija board will pin their faith in straw votes on the presidency.

Venerable Salem

By Frederic J. Haskin

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 29.—After a century or more of steady contact with modernizing influences, Salem's fame still rests on its picturesque past.

Modern Salem is just a town outside of Boston, made up of shops, factories, cotton mills, and the New England homestead in all its varieties. Salem's population of 43,000 goes over to fishing for excitement and for most of its culture, but every Salemite holds on tenaciously to his residence, whether it be an unimproved example of 18th-century architecture or a third-story back room in a house with no pedigree worth mentioning. For the housing problem has not skipped Salem. What was a $4,000 double in the historic days before the war now sells at a bargain for $10,000, and even at that figure an unoccupied house here, as elsewhere, is a rarity.

But though the modern Salem offers few opportunities for newsgathering, old Salem, hidden away around the corners, is always fascinating. Chestnut Street still keeps intact its long rows of cream-colored colonial mansions, representing the finest collection of colonial doorways in the country. Architects from everywhere come to Chestnut Street for inspiration. And no wonder, for no two houses have identical entrances, and yet all are emblem of the best type, with their carved white pillars and fence posts, and heavy brass knockers flanking the centers of the dark, paneled doors.

House of Seven Gables

But Chestnut Street, pleasant as it is with its line of trees and its stately old residences, suggests little of the popular history of Salem. To find that you must cross the business district, over into the other side of town, to the Essex Institute, the old Custom House, and the House of Seven Gables.

The institute is Salem's museum, where the city preserves its historic treasures. Most visitors are to see witchcraft exhibits. Few others are saved from the excitement of 1922. Such objects as the cane which one of the accused men carried and a small box made from the wood of a tree on Gallows Hill hardly help you to realize the tragedy of nineteen law-abiding citizens being pressed to death with iron weights, and several hundred held in jail.

Several of the old witch-houses are to be seen in the museum. They are clumsy-looking affairs, over an inch long, the forefathers of the neat brass pin of today. The children of Salem Village said that the witches stuck pins into them and in other ways tormented them, and these accusations were seriously listened to by the wisest men of Salem and Boston.

The museum has the original record of the trial of Martha Corey, one of the aged women who was executed as a witch. The signature of John Hathorne, affixed to the old document, calls to mind the story that Nathaniel Hawthorne changed the spelling of his name because he disapproved of his ancestor's part as a judge in the witchcraft cases.

Gallows Hill, where the 19 witches were hanged to trees, is on the outskirts of the town. It is a rocky abrupt prominence, now bare of trees. For years after the witches were dealt it remained desolate and sinister. But recently, a big, brick high school has been built on the summit, and the creepy atmosphere is dispelled by the shouts and chatter of the students.

The Lost Letter

Back in the heart of the town, near the river, is the Custom House, where Hawthorne wrote part of "The Scarlet Letter." He claimed in the story to have found the fantastic letter in the Custom House records. A friend asked him if the letter really existed, and he replied that it did. But when the friend insisted on seeing it Hawthorne retreated hastily, saying that the children had got hold of it one day and it had fallen in the fire.

Salem was not a great port in Hawthorne's time. In earlier years it had been the bustling trade center of New England. Rich merchants built gabled houses not far from Salem's harbor, so that they could watch with the spy-glass from their parlors or attic windows down and know the minute a ship and its cargo were safely in port. Then Salem been endowed with a deep harbor, she might today be one of the busiest ports on the coast. But ships too large to anchor here were built, and after the railroad was invented, Boston harbor was only a step away, so that ships big and little deserted the old harbor.

When Hawthorne was surveyor of the port, in 1840, trade was already dwindling. Employees of the Custom House office say that the work is light now, largely the routine of a small port. Their most arduous duties, no doubt, are to answer the strange questions of hundreds of tourists who come to see where Hawthorne worked and to handle his pen. The room is almost as it was in the author's time, save for electric lights and a telephone, and a new desk to replace Hawthorne's small, light one, which is in the museum. It is an old-fashioned room, with more furniture than the usual modern government office. A page from "The Scarlet Letter," written on the foolscap paper which Hawthorne used, is displayed prominently on the mantelpiece.

Hawthorne Remembered

Hawthorne is still an outstanding figure in Salem. His birthplace, an unimproved little house on Union Street, is still standing. The famous "House of Seven Gables" has been restored inside to look as it did when Hawthorne used to pay long visits to his cousin, Miss Susan Ingersoll, who owned it then. Hawthorne liked the view of the sea from the garden of this house, and he particularly enjoyed the congenial company of Miss Susan, who had been crossed in love when very young and was noted for her gloomy, hermit-like disposition.

True to his name, the house now possesses seven gables. This is really a departure from the Hawthorne atmosphere, for it had only five when he lived it. Miss Susan is said to have shown him where two more gables had formerly been placed, and the idea of the unusual number of seven gables so appealed to the novelist that he immediately planned his famous tale named after the house.

It is one of the quietest houses in the country. Six of its sixteen rooms are exhibited, furnished in the style of Hawthorne's period, and with a great many of the original furnishings. In the keeping room, or parlor, the gloomy Miss Susan in dark old looks down on the leather chair where "Nathaniel" wrote part of "The Scarlet Letter." Then you are led to an attic where you may see an old chest of the witchcraft times, and hear the tradition that the chest once held a half of claret around the lamp floor at night, until the owner had a parson pray over it to subdue it.

A Secret Stairway

Then there is a great last chamber draped in dull chains, the shining room, where most of the seven gables story took place, and a kitchen with a fireplace where a meal for a repentant might easily have cooked. About this fireplace and its chimney hangs the best story of the house. It tells a secret stairway, connecting the dining room with a gabled bedroom above. Who built the secret stair, or why, nobody knows. It is certain that a Mr. Purser, who owned the house shortly before the witchcraft excitement, made a number of improvements and hid-

Recently enlarged his chimney. When the "witchcraft" excitement came, Turner's friend John English, was accused. English escaped "to England" and did not reappear until it was safe to do so. From these facts it is deduced that Turner built the stair as a hiding place in case any of his family were accused, and it is thought possible that his friend stayed in the little bedroom, ready at any moment to slip back the right panel and disappear into the winding ladder-like stairs inside the chimney.

The size of the opening in which the refugee had to spend a good deal of his time may be judged from the fact that the average visitor of large proportions is nervous for fear he, or she, will get stuck if the climb is attempted.

New-York - Day-By-Day

By A. & MONTY

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Thoughtful while strolling around New York: Planks of stone! How I'd like to coast from Academy Hill back home. Pop corn balls on the street corners! There's something fascinating about a window full of musical instruments. Secretly I believe every man has an ambition to play an accordion.

That policeman is bawling me out for crossing the street before his signal. I'll appear unconcerned. O! For a lodge in some vast wilderness. All the women are craning their necks to see Eugene O'Brien. Wonder what he makes a week. He wears a wrist watch. The upkeep of that is something. Every Hapgood, has four plays running on Broadway. Used to be a reporter in Cleveland. A British officer wearing a monocle of smoked glass. Newspapers from all cities. There would be a good place to meet someone from Eugene. K. H. Southern out for a walk.

There's a gruff old fellow. Has the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera whiskers. Let he jabs a mean marin spike! Unites of chickens going to the pier. Around the water front is the only place they seem to sell plug tobacco. And one of the few places where cursing seems to be an art. Three tramp steamers drifting out to sea.

I'll go up through Wall Street and see the sights. Still getting in windows broken by the bomb explosion. All the reporters believe it was a careless driver's work. And not a Red cutback. The J. P. Morgan building looks like it had been in Belgium.

A street runs through the Municipal Building. And so do street cars. The most impressive thing to me about the City Hall is the hundreds of shoe shine stands and they never seem busy. A statue of Nathan Hale. What was it he said? I must brush up in my history. Old women out gathering kindling for the winter. There goes Norman Hapgood into the Tribune office. I'll listen to this street orator awhile and then go home.

Brook Pemberton's "Enter Madame" is rated as the hit of the New York theatrical season. Considering that it was the first venture of the young newspaper reporter from Emporia, Kansas, on the rough theatrical seas, it is a crowning record. It started at the old Garrick out of the theatrical belt, but its immediate success has resulted in its removal to the Fulton in the center of the city. Pemberton, it is said, was able to rely on the proceeds of his first play if he so desired. But now he is planning to produce Zena Gale's "Miss Lulu Bett" that admirable story of the small town struggle. Wise theatrical men are predicting a slump in the theatre within 30 days. They base their prediction on the small number of really worth while plays. But New York is still building more theatres.

The police say that with the heavy demand for workers during and following the war the Dummy Chucker van has resulted in the loss of the Dummy Chucker. The Dummy Chucker is the type of wild beggar who caters to the month with the hope of inspiring passers by to toss him money. But the other day the Dummy Chucker returned. One fell in a seizure on Fifth Avenue but when some one in the crowd yelled "Make way for the officer!" the rogue jumped up and ran.

In an office building on West Forty Second street one morning this week an elevator dropped and stuck between floors. The only passengers were a young man and a young girl. They were strangers. After 30 minutes the girl fainting in the young man's arms. Of course, you have guessed it. They are to be married soon.

No Chance. Some profiteers slipped into heaven (They only numbered six or seven). St. Peter addressed the angel told: "Kiss good-bye to your streets of gold."

The Yukon. "Tie true," remarked the Yukon man. "I've always heard that the Scotch were the slickest people on earth, but, by gosh, if they ever married one of so Yankees on a desert island the next morning they'd be selling garden truck to the inhabitants 'what ain't'."

For Gentlemen Only. The calf was skillful as could be. It kicked the bucket in the air. It ran like a deer, fast and free. And would the farm hand fellows swear.

But say, youth always has its fling. Boys do the same, despite your call. Why blame the young for anything? The kindest truth is true of all.

The cow gets peevish, frets a bit. She flicks blue-bottles with her tail. And mulling. Well, you stop at it. And catch the overturning pail. But say, each one of us we find One day of grouch and discontent, We kick and leave a trouble-trail. When, mostly, only good was meant.

The ball sports fire and rules the field. We dodge behind a sheltering tree. The bark from many a bird is peeted. And swift tornado rage is free! But, then, some men we know, give vent To rare, and leap the pasture bars. For all life's sweet, outline intent, We make the quiet world see stars. —Toronto Globe

He Should Have Known It. An almanac had been taking up-ingers for short trips, and he time his last trip came was absolutely fed up by being asked silly questions. He told his passengers, two ladies, that on no account were they to speak to him, that he could not talk and give his attention to his machine, and that they must keep silent.

Up they went and the almanac quite enjoyed himself. He looped the loop, and practised all sorts of stunts to his own satisfaction with no interruption from his passengers until he felt a touch on his arm.

"What is it?" he said, impatiently. "I'm sorry to trouble you," said a voice behind, "and know I ought not to speak. I do apologize sincerely, but I can't help it. I thought perhaps you ought to know Amie's gone!"

In the Old Days. "Mr. Flivver, I'm Tony, your old backer. I'm out of a job, and—" "I don't want to hear your troubles," "There's gratitude for you. I've listened to yours for hours at a time."

Two Cars Pass Over Brakeman's Body; Is Only Slightly Injured

W. H. Danforth, N. & W. yard brakeman, was run over by two gondola cars in the N. & W. yards at East Portsmouth about 6:45 o'clock Thursday evening. Luckily he was between the two rails and the cars passed over him, the bottom doors of the gondola cars slightly injuring his back. Danforth was able to leave the hospital this morning and is counting his lucky stars that he did not happen to fall on one of the rails.

He was on a cut of cars attempting to make a coupling, when a sudden jerk of the train threw him to the track.

He was knocked unconscious when he hit the roadbed. A few minutes later he was raised by another brakeman and a search for him revealed his unconscious form under one of the cars. He was carried to the Y. M. C. A., where Lynn's ambulance received him and took him to the hospital. He regained consciousness about nine o'clock last night but after a short time lapsed into a state of semi-coma and remained that way until this morning.

Danforth is employed as brakeman in the east yard light side. He is living at the East Portsmouth Y. M. C. A. building.

Sure Cure For Blues

Even more enjoyable in every respect than the program for the first half of the week is the combined offering of musical comedy, first run feature photoplays and genuine big time vaudeville for today and tomorrow at the Sun theatre, according to all those who attended the popular matinee yesterday. "Watch Your Husband," the musical comedy offering of the Keystone Folies for today and tomorrow, is not only extraordinarily funny, but it abounds in catchy songs, in clever and graceful dances, in attractive new scenery and in laugh-out-loud situations. "Watch Your Husband" is a sure cure for the blues.

UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR HOME SEEKERS

Although the houses being erected by the Portsmouth Home Building Company are just being roofed at present there have already been a considerable number of inquiries concerning them. The fact that all materials were bought in large quantities and consequently at better figures, than would have been possible for the average builder has convinced a number of prospective buyers that these houses are well worth investigation.

The additional facts that the contractors were able to figure a little closer because of the size of the job and that the buyers are only getting a low return on their money means to the thoughtful buyer that he is getting in on the ground floor and that he can buy at a price that will not only protect him against any probable depreciation, but will enable to resell the property very likely at a profit.

The management of the Home Building Company particularly stress the point that these are not cheap houses, but are good houses, unusually well equipped, which are to be sold at a price made possible by their large purchasing power and comparatively large operations. Inspection of the properties as they are now in process at the Trafalgar and Peabody additions is cordially invited.

A special proposition is being made to those who wish to get a house at a very fair price and at the same time have their own individual ideas incorporated in their homes. This is the provision that the Home Building Company will at a nominal cost make any reasonable change in the specifications at the request of the owner.

Those interested in getting a home of their own can see the property at the sites and the plans and specifications at the offices of the Chamber of Commerce. Prices have been set on all of the properties and plans for the financial arrangements are in the hands of Mr. Harris, the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. It will pay to get in early.

Oil from shale is the industry that is to be promoted by the Duck Run Coal and Refining Company

The Duck Run Coal and Refining Company, incorporated Thursday at Columbus by local men with a capital stock of $500,000. The incorporators are W. E. Tripp, Dr. H. H. Morgan, P. H. Hirsch, W. S. Kent and C. F. Duttel, all local men. The incorporation is the result of many laboratory tests that have been made of oil shale since last February.

According to the incorporators the industry of extracting oil and by products from shale will be second to none within the county within three years.

Oil from shale is not a new industry. It has been one of the biggest industries in Scotland for years and within the last few years as the demand grows greater and greater the industry is coming into its own in this country.

The laboratory tests have been going on since February in Mr. Tripp's office and the oil received in these tests was taken through a refining process that proved the oil was of the best quality.

The men have kept their tests quiet and only until the last few days have they let their friends view their laboratory tests which are still going on.

There are 54 shales in the county but only two have been found oil bearing. These are the carbon and clay shales and samples of these two are being taken from all parts of the county and tests are being made of each.

The oil is not the kind that can be taken from the shale deposits through a distillation process. The oil is brought out by heat and besides the vapors there are by products such as ammonia sulphate and potash and gas.

The company has already leased over 3000 acres of shale land in this county and Adams county. They are not stopping at this but are still taking samples of shale and additional land will be leased.

The work of the company will be first to open a quarry, this to be followed by the erection of a retort and this by a refining plant. Most of the oil shale companies have their quarry and retort but do not have their own refinery, but as the best returns are in the refining business the local company intends to have a complete plant in order to market the pure oil and gas and by products.

Mrs. Holmes, Noted Orator, Says Harding Will Not Carry Single State In The South

Mrs. Lydia Holmes, who spoke to the women voters of Portsmouth in the high school auditorium last night, has had an interesting and varied political career. She is now speaking in behalf of the Democratic National Committee.

She was born in Kentucky and began her political career at the age of 6 when visiting Governor Knott of Kentucky. Robert Wickliffe, her first husband, was a famous national congressman from Louisiana, who was killed in an accident in Washington.

Mrs. Holmes has lived in the South the greater part of the time since 1903 and thoroughly knows the political situation there. She has always been an ardent suffrage worker and has for years been fighting to give women the right to vote. She has acted as state chairman for the Women's Suffrage Workers in Louisiana and she helped in the fight conducted in Tennessee where woman suffrage became an actuality.

Mrs. Holmes put through two beneficial bills in Louisiana, one providing for a mother's pension and the other for separate property rights for women.

In discussing the political situation in the South, Mrs. Holmes said: "Senator Warren G. Harding hasn't a chance to carry a single southern state, not even Georgia, where conditions are terribly upset."
